CHILD HERO HURT IN SAVING PLAYMATE.

Brave Boy of Four Years and Child He Saved.

Little-Peter Jackson is in hospital, dangerously injured as the result of his gallant effort to protect his little playmate. Agnes Fortenbacher, when she was in danger of being run over by a truck. The little girl was gaved, with but slight injuries, but the small hero with her suffered broken limbs and concussion of the brain.

BY CHANCE SAVED WANTS ROOSEVELT

A S the penalty for saving his sweet heart's life, little four-year-old Peter, Jackson is now at Roosevelt Haspital, seriously injured.

Agais Fortenbacher, three years old, is a dimpled, blue-eyed tot, identified everywhere as Petgr's sweetheart. When they were in bapy clothes they played together at No. 433 West Fifty-fourth street. When they were large enough to talk and walk Peter and Aggle were inseparable. It was no case of unrequited love.

When a little girl fell into a trough of queklime last Summer Peter walked in barefooted to rescue her. Aggle nursed him while his burns healed. In the Fall they eutered kindergarten together.

The Metropolitan Company is tearing up Tenzh avenue. Trucks and horse cars are crowded on the west side of the street. On the ofher side is a deep excavation, over which, at street crossings, are narrow bridges.

After the children had entered the kindergarten the Fortenbacher family moved to No. 507 West Fifty-second street. This is on the opposite side of the avenue from the school. Peter always saw Aggle home to
